A Child Killed His Mother.

At Rogers, Wolfe county, Tuesday afternoon, the seven-year-old son of John Hatton, a farmer, shot and killed his mother. The mother had corrected the child for something he had done and the child said: "I will kill you for that." He went into the other room and got his father's pistol off a stand table and pointed it at his mother, pulling the trigger. The ball struck Mr. Hatton on the right side above the hip passing through the body and out on the left side, killing her instantly.

The child on realizing what it had done threw down the pistol and ran to his mother and called her telling he did not mean to kill her.

The crop of tobacco grown on Woodburn Farm, in Woodford, the home of the late A. J. Alexander, last year, about 103,000 pounds, was sold by William E. Simms to the American Tobacco Company at an average of 10 cents per pound. This is the first time tobacco has ever been grown at Woodburn.

The Lexington Herald of Tuesday says: "Jack Point will be sent to Raceland Stud, owned by Catesby Woodford, of Bourbon county, instead of Runnymede Stud, as was reported. Along with Jack Point will be sent to the same place three mares and three yearlings, belonging to A. L. Aste. Jack Point has been in the stud for several years and is not being retired to the stud as might have been inferred from the article published about him. On the turf he was a successful race horse, and since his retirement to the stud has won a first prize in a show ring at the State Fair. He is regarded by many judges of horse flesh as one of the best sons of Sir Dixon and it is predicted that his career in the stud will be successful as was his career on the turf."

Speculation in sheep is at a low ebb at present, says the Breeder's Gazette. A year ago the wise ones were scouring the country securing opinions that proved very profitable during the Summer. Growers were not in a position to forecast with any degree of accuracy the future source of values and accepted offers from speculators that looked attractive but subsequently proved to be below the value of the goods. The speculator has no chance to make a dollar under existing conditions, in the opinion of an extensive operator who last year cleaned up a small fortune. He has just returned from the West without securing a hoof. The speculator had his innings in 1905, but if there is to be any profit in sheep this year the grower will get it. And this same speculator believes that it is going to be a better year than last for the grower.
